Providing context

BY HIGHLIGHTING A SECTION OF TEXT, YOU CAN PROVIDE CONTEXT TO CALLIOPE ON WHAT AREAS YOU WANT TO WORK ON.

Kirsten is only eight years old when the pandemic begins. That night, she plays a small, non-speaking role in a King Lear production and watches the actor of Lear, Arthur Leander, die on-stage from a heart attack. She watches as the world falls into chaos, governments and countries buckling under the strain of the Georgia Flu, the virus responsible for the fall of civilization. 20 years later, Kirsten is part of the Travelling Symphony, a group of musicians and actors preserving human art by traveling the land and performing for others. As she was a child during the time of the collapse, Kirsten's memories of the past world are as broken and fragmented as the land around her. Her actions show clearly that she wants to remember the old world and re-experience the times when she didn't have to worry about her next meal or where she

Calliope's Thoughts

This section of writing is effective in its conciseness and ability to set up crucial information rapidly. The text I've highlighted in green is "Kirsten is only eight years old when the pandemic begins. That night, she plays a small, non-speaking role in a King Lear production and watches the actor of Lear, Arthur Leander, die on-stage from a heart attack". This introduction immediately grounds the reader in Kirsten's origin story, linking her personal trauma to the larger societal collapse. It establishes the central character, a key supporting character (Arthur Leander), and the pivotal moment of the world's downfall all within the first two sentences. The text I've highlighted in green is "She watches
